The New York Herald says: "There is a demand for tea of a green color in some parts of this country and Europe. It is not a question of flavor, but of celor, with some people."

We ought to protect ourselves pure tee just se we against impure milk. Ordinary teabuyers are not judges of tea; but should we not have inspectors to protect us from impure feed of every sort.

J. J. Baker reports that while himself and party were enroute from Phenix to this place, and while camped at the Montesums wells, one of the party, Miss Blanch Farrington, while exploring one of the caves found what is supposed to have been a large bird. It must have been of mamoth size judging the precent mummified appear ances; but the remarkable part abou it was the bird has four legs.
